

Leader of Leaders Transition Development Programme

Have you recently become a leader of leaders? The chief executives of the New Zealand public service have recognised the need for all leaders to be developed at critical transitions within their career. In response, the Leadership Development Centre has designed the Leader of Leaders Transition Development Programme specifically for all public service leaders who are transitioning into a role where they are now leading other leaders.

This programme was designed alongside the Public Service Act 2020. It seeks to build the critical leadership skills identified in the legislation, such as Māori Crown capability, strategic thinking, systems thinking, and unified and inclusive leadership mindset.

Programme features

- Opportunities to network with peers in the public service who share a common purpose with you
- Development guides to support your reflection, spark your curiosity and help you acquire new knowledge
- Applied learning within the flow of your day to day work
- Personalised leadership experiments designed to practice and embed your new skills
- Peer learning groups where you can receive feedback and learn from others' experiences

Key development priorities for leaders of leaders

The programme will focus on the six development priorities identified to support successful people leaders to transition into their first leader of leaders role: Mindset, Strategy, Influence, Engage, Collaborate and Develop.

You will

- Deepen your understanding of critical shifts that are required in this key transition
- Be supported to focus on system priorities
- Build collaborative and inclusive leadership capability within your teams
- Learn to influence in an intentional and deliberate way
- Enhance you and your teams ability to partner effectively at the Māori Crown interface
- Become more aware of how you model positive wellbeing and let go of the detailed work

Eligibility requirements

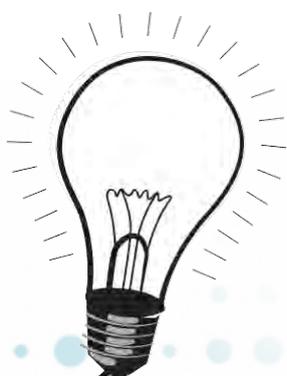

All public service leaders who are in their first 12 months of transition into a leader of leaders role. LDC members will have priority.

Time commitment

The programme runs for eight consecutive months. Over the course of six months there is a minimum expectation of 21 hours of self-directed learning alongside six facilitated days. Register your interest: www.ldc.govt.nz/link/interest
